Acknowledgements

We wish to acknowledge and thank the 39 state ombudsman programs that responded to the Ombudsman Program Questionnaire. Responses were received from February through April 2003. The questionnaire collected basic program information about the entities that provide legal counsel and representation to the ombudsman program and the functions they perform on behalf of the program.

Legal Counsel and Representation of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program

Introduction

Adequate legal counsel for the ombudsman program and its representatives is critical to fulfilling the program's responsibility to advocate for older persons residing in nursing homes, assisted living facilities and board and care residences. This paper provides information about the entities that provide legal counsel and representation to the ombudsman program at the state and local levels, the types of support provided, and how ombudsman programs assist consumers to obtain legal assistance when necessary.

As part of its workplan for the National Ombudsman Resource Center, the National Association of State Units on Aging (NASUA) gathered information about states' enabling statutes for the ombudsman program in 2001, identifying 25 states (AK, AZ, CA, CO, CT, DE, DC, FL, IL, IN, KS, MS, NE, NJ, NM, NC, ND, OH, OK, TX, UT, VT, WA, WV, WI) that address the provision of legal counsel in statute or regulation. Some states reiterate the OAA requirements in their enabling statutes, while others are more specific about who should provide such counsel.

The Older Americans Act (OAA) specifies the requirements for providing the ombudsman program with adequate legal representation and for pursuing administrative, legal and other appropriate remedies on behalf of residents. Specifically, section 712(g) states:

The State agency shall ensure that ---

(1)(A) adequate legal counsel is available, and is able, without conflict of interest, to ---

(i) provide advice and consultation needed to protect the health, safety, welfare, and rights of residents; and

(ii) assist the Ombudsman and representatives of the Office in the performance of the official duties of the Ombudsman and representatives; and

(B) legal representation is provided to any representative of the Office against whom suit or other legal action is brought or threatened to be brought in connection with the performance of the official duties of the Ombudsman or such a representative; and

(2) the Office pursues administrative, legal, and other appropriate remedies on behalf of residents.

While the OAA requires the state unit on aging to ensure the ombudsman program has adequate legal counsel, it gives states flexibility to determine the most effective manner in which to fulfill this requirement.

Questionnaire

Questions about legal counsel and representation (see Appendix A) were included in a broader questionnaire regarding ombudsman program structure, scope and funding. The primary questions about legal counsel were:

- ♦ What entities provide legal counsel and representation to the ombudsman program?
- ♦ What functions does the legal counsel perform for the ombudsman program?
- ♦ How is legal representation provided for local ombudsman programs?
- ♦ How do ombudsman programs assist residents to obtain legal assistance when necessary?

The questionnaire was sent to state ombudsman programs by email in February 2003 and was also disseminated at the 2003 Ombudsman Training Conference held in Chicago, Illinois on April 12 -15, 2003. Responses were compiled in chart form. The chart was shared with state ombudsmen respondents to enable them to make any necessary corrections. The data is accurate as of April 2004.¹

Findings

Thirty-nine (39) state ombudsman programs responded to the questionnaire. The information collected in the questionnaire about the provision of legal counsel and representation to the ombudsman program addresses the following:

- The entity that provides legal counsel to the Office of the SLTCO.
- State authority for providing legal counsel to the ombudsman program.
- The entity(ies) that provide legal counsel to local ombudsman programs.
- Program requirements for the provision of legal counsel at the local level.
- Mandatory qualifications of legal counsel (if any).
- Functions performed by legal counsel at the state and/or local level.
- The process for accessing legal counsel.
- Authority and circumstances for obtaining outside legal counsel.
- Authority to pursue administrative and legal remedies on behalf of residents.

Appendix B contains a chart that provides program specific information on the 39 programs that responded to the questionnaire. A list of materials that ombudsman programs provided to supplement their responses can be found in Appendix C. Appendix D contains a chart of the entities in each state and the District of Columbia that provide legal counsel and representation to the ombudsman program. Job descriptions of legal counsel for the Florida, Maine and Wisconsin ombudsman programs are included in the appendices E, F and G respectively.

This paper contains an analysis of the aggregate responses to the questionnaire and addresses the data elements listed above. How ombudsman programs establish working relationships with their legal counsel, how the program helps residents who need legal assistance, and whether the ombudsman program has ever been the subject of a lawsuit are also discussed although not specifically addressed in the chart in Appendix B.

Entities that provide legal counsel to the Office of the State Ombudsman

The entities that provide legal counsel and representation to the Office of the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman include:

- Office of the Attorney General - 25 programs (AL, AK, AZ, CA, CO, CT, DE, FL, GA, HI, ID, IL, IN, IA, MI, MN, NE, NV, NC, ND, OH, RI, SC, TX, WV). The Office of the Attorney General is the single source of legal counsel and representation for the ombudsman program in seven states (AK, DE, HI, IA, MN, NE, NV).
- In-House Counsel (not a Legal Assistance Developer) - 22 programs (AZ, CA, CT, DC, FL, GA, IL, IN, KY, LA, ME, MO, MT, NJ, NM, NY, ND, OH, PA, SC, WV, WI).
- Private attorneys under contract - 11 programs (AZ, CO, GA, IL, IN, MO, MT, NC, RI, TN, WA).
- Title III legal assistance providers - 7 programs (AL, CA, GA, IL, IN, KY, WA).
- Legal Assistance Developers (LAD) at the SUA - 5 programs (AZ, CA, CO, GA, IL).
- Other (i.e., county or local government attorney, Protection & Advocacy attorney, legal division of umbrella agency, Legal Aid organization, university law school, etc.) - 8 programs (FL, ID, LA, MI, OK, TX, WA, WV).

See Appendix D for a chart of the entities that provide legal counsel and representation to the ombudsman program in each state and the District of Columbia. In twenty-three states (AL, AZ, CA, CO, CT, FL, GA, ID, IL, IN, KY, LA, MI, MO, MT, NC, ND, OH, RI, SC, TX, WA, WV) more than one entity provides legal counsel to the ombudsman program at the state and/or local levels. In some of these states, the state ombudsman may use a different legal counsel than the local programs. In other states different entities may provide specific types of legal counsel for the ombudsman program at both the state and local levels.

Authority for providing legal counsel to the state ombudsman

The OAA requires states to ensure the ombudsman program has access to adequate legal counsel, without conflict of interest. Some of the ombudsman programs that responded to the questionnaire indicated that their states have specified how legal counsel will be provided through:

- state statute (21 programs)
- operating policy of the SUA (16 programs)
- ombudsman program policy (15 programs)
- regulation (6 programs).

Rhode Island includes a requirement for legal counsel in the program's budget proviso and the Maine SUA includes a requirement for the provision of legal counsel in its contract with the Maine Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program.

Entities that provide legal counsel to local ombudsman programs

Of the 39 programs that responded to the questionnaire, 31 operate local ombudsman programs. In 23 of these 31 programs legal counsel is statewide, meaning the same entity provides legal counsel to both the state ombudsman and local ombudsman programs. In six of these ombudsman programs (AL, CA, ID, IL, IN, WA) where legal counsel is provided by the same entity at the state and local levels, local programs may also use additional sources of legal counsel to perform functions not provided by the statewide legal counsel. In the remaining eight programs (AZ, CO, GA², KY, MO, MT, NC, WV), a separate entity(ies) provides legal counsel at the local level. Providers of legal counsel to local ombudsman programs include: Title III legal assistance providers, in-house counsel, private attorneys under contract, county or city attorneys, and a university law school.

Requirements for legal counsel at the local level

Local ombudsman programs in 13 states (AL, AZ, CA, CO, GA, ID, IL, IN, KY, MO, NC, TX, WV) must secure their own legal counsel. States specify these requirements in a variety of ways including:

- program policy and procedures (CA, CO, GA, ID, IL, IN, MT, NC)
- regulation (AL, AZ, CO, WV)
- state statute (CO, IN, WV)
- area plans (AL, KY, NC)
- contracts between the state and local ombudsman program (TX, WV).

Qualifications of legal counsel

The District of Columbia, Florida, Maine, Washington and Wisconsin have prescribed qualifications or job descriptions for the ombudsman program's legal counsel.

² The Georgia State Ombudsman directly responds to all subpoenas and Freedom of Information requests on behalf of the statewide program since records are property of the State Office. Local ombudsman programs refer all such requests to the state ombudsman.

Developing qualifications and job descriptions has allowed these programs to establish basic criteria and expectations for adequate legal counsel.

The Washington State Ombudsman Program requires legal counsel to have knowledge of the long-term care field, policy and regulatory experience, be a registered lobbyist, and to have the ability to train ombudsmen.

See Appendices E, F, and G for a description of the legal counsel's functions for the Florida, Maine and Wisconsin ombudsman programs, respectively.

Functions performed by legal counsel at the state and/or local level

Functions performed by legal counsel vary by state and may include a range of tasks such as:

- Providing general advice and consultation.
- Reviewing program regulations and policies.
- Responding to subpoenas of the program.
- Representing the ombudsman program in court.
- Handling access problems to facilities, residents and residents' records.
- Training ombudsman program staff on legal issues.
- Consulting with the ombudsman program on specific cases.
- Reviewing and assisting the program respond to FOI requests.

The functions that the ombudsman program's legal counsel performs may be different at the state and local levels. In Georgia for example, legal counsel at the state level reviews program regulations and policies, Freedom of Information (FOI) requests and subpoenas, while legal counsel at the local level provides ombudsman programs with general advice and consultation, case specific consultation, representation in court, training on legal issues and handles problems related to the program's access to facilities, residents and residents' records. See Appendix B for a list of the functions each program's legal counsel performs at the state and local levels.

Process for accessing legal counsel

Ombudsman programs access assistance from legal counsel in several ways --- by direct contact (phone, email, etc.), in writing, or through the SUA or other entity that houses the ombudsman program.

Thirty-five (35) of the 39 programs responding to the questionnaire have access to legal counsel through direct contact, either by calling or email. In three states (AL, IN, MI) the state ombudsman may only access legal counsel through the SUA. In these states the SUA may contact legal counsel on behalf of the program or give permission to the state ombudsman to contact the legal counsel. In California the state ombudsman may access legal counsel either in writing or through the SUA. See Appendix B for information on how each ombudsman program accesses legal counsel.

Authority and circumstances for obtaining outside legal counsel

In addition to the official entity(ies) that provides legal counsel to the ombudsman program, thirteen (13) programs (AK, DC, GA, IN, LA, ME, MI, MT, NJ, OH, OK, TX, WA) also have authority to obtain legal advice or support from an outside entity such as a private attorney. The circumstances under which these programs have used outside legal counsel include:

- When legal counsel has a conflict of interest (AK, GA, OK).
- Consultation on individual cases (MI, TX).
- Assisting local ombudsman programs with discharge appeals (IN).
- Handling issues for residents under 60 when no pro bono attorney is available (ME).
- Supporting the ombudsman program in legal actions against local government agencies (DC).
- Providing strategy support on legislative advocacy issues (OH).
- Defense of the ombudsman program in litigation cases (NJ).

Authority to pursue administrative and legal remedies on behalf of residents

In 29 states and the District of Columbia, the authority to pursue administrative and legal remedies on behalf of residents, specified in the OAA, is also specified in:

- state statute (23 states)
- policy and procedures (13 programs)
- program regulations (7 programs).

Information was not collected on the specific language used in statute, policy and procedures or regulations.

Establishing working relationships with legal counsel

Ombudsman programs have established effective working relationships with their legal counsel through cross-training, education, regular meetings and written agreements.

- Most frequently, ombudsman programs invite their legal counsel to both conduct and attend training as a way to promote understanding of the different roles legal counsel to the ombudsman program play and ensure that legal counsel can appropriately assist the program.
- State and/or local ombudsman programs in 15 states (AL, CA, CO, FL, GA, IN, ME, MI, NJ, NY, ND, SC, TX, WA, WV) meet with their legal counsel on a regular basis.³
- Eleven programs (AL, AZ, CA, CO, ID, KY, MI, NC, OK, SC, WA) have written agreements with their legal counsel at the state and/or local level.

³ The frequency of regular meetings varied by program from daily to yearly.

How ombudsman programs assist residents who need legal assistance

Thirty-five (35) ombudsman programs assist residents who need legal intervention to handle situations such as public benefits eligibility and appeals, transfer and discharge, billing problems, and guardianship/advance directives. Ombudsman programs assist residents to access legal counsel in a variety of ways including:

- referring residents to legal assistance / services (33 programs)
- discussing case situations with the program's legal counsel (14 programs)
- arranging for legal counsel (9 programs).

In eleven (11) states (FL, LA, ME, MI, MT, NJ, NY, TX, WA, WV, WI) and the District of Columbia the program's legal counsel may become actively involved on behalf of residents in certain instances. The criteria used to determine when or how the legal counsel becomes involved in a case varies by program and is generally determined on a case-by-case basis. However, some programs have identified specific types of cases in which their legal counsel is likely to be involved. For example:

- The Florida and Texas ombudsman programs involve their legal counsel in discharge situations.
- In Maine, the program's legal counsel assists residents in non-court hearings and in situations involving persons under 60 when no pro bono attorney is available.
- The ombudsman program's legal counsel in New Jersey petitions the court for injunctive relief on behalf of residents whose rights have been violated.

Lawsuits Against the Ombudsman Program

In five states (GA, KY, NJ, OH, WA), the ombudsman program has been named in lawsuits brought by long-term care providers. A detailed description of these legal actions is beyond the scope of this paper. However, the nature of these complaints can be described as challenges to the ombudsman program's immunity for "good faith" actions in the performance of official duties (e.g., referring complaint information to other agencies such as licensure and certification, assisting residents to appeal discharges, etc.). All of these suits were either dismissed or settled in favor of the ombudsman program.

Summary

Thirty-nine (39) state ombudsman programs responded to a questionnaire about legal counsel and representation of the ombudsman program at both the state and local levels. Responses revealed that the most frequently used sources of legal counsel are the Office of the Attorney General and in-house legal counsel (other than a legal assistance developer); 92% of the responding programs use one or both for legal counsel and representation. Other entities that provide legal counsel to the program at the state and/or local levels include private attorneys under contract, Title III legal assistance providers, legal assistance developers in the SUA, city and county attorneys, Legal Aid and other legal providers. Twenty-three (23) of 31 programs with local ombudsman programs reported that legal counsel is statewide, meaning the same entity provides legal counsel to both the state ombudsman and local ombudsman programs. However, the functions performed by legal counsel vary by state and in some programs also differ at the state and local level. Several ombudsman programs have developed qualifications and job descriptions for their legal counsel. Examples of these are included in the Appendix.

Ombudsman programs have established effective working relationships with their legal counsel through cross-training, education, regular meetings and written agreements. Thirty-five (35) of the 39 programs responding can access legal counsel directly by phone or email, and 13 programs have authority to obtain legal advice or support from an outside entity such as a private attorney in special circumstances. Thirty (30) ombudsman programs have authority through state statute, policy or regulations to pursue administrative and legal remedies on behalf of residents. Additionally, 35 ombudsman programs provide referrals and other types of assistance to residents who need legal intervention to handle situations such as public benefits eligibility, appeals and billing problems.
